Dear Mr. Skaggs,

I just received your faxed press release regarding The Solomon Project. I have only one comment to direct at an individual that would so callously and sardonically manipulate the media and legal academic circles: I want to have your child.

I have been a fan of your activities since I first heard of them and am honored to have been included in your latest adventure. Reading the press release I felt the overwhelming urge to offer my congratulations. At my law school here no one except me, at this point, knows The Solomon Project is a hoax, and I have spent the better part of the morning dropping in on professors to ask their opinion of it, just for shits and giggles. They all hate it and "this lunatic Bonuso." All of them have heard about The Solomon Project, by the way.

From my experience as a "legal publisher," I have found that legal scholars take themselves far too seriously. The Solomon Project was a welcome breath of fresh air.

Again, I salute you.

ps. One comment: the suggestion of sodium pentathol may have been a bit heavy handed but was a wonderful touch.
